Subject: PER-CENT coded under DATA

I plotted cross section ratios of $^{243}\text{Am}(n,\gamma)^{244}\text{Am}$ to $^{197}\text{Au}(n,\gamma)^{198}\text{Au}$ measured by K. Wisshak and F. Käppeler (EXFOR 21863) with evaluated data libraries, and got a strange figure:

I found PER-CENT is coded under DATA illegally.

The heading PER-CENT can be used only for uncertainties in EXFOR. If a data set is given in %, it must be divided by 100 and entered with the unit code NO-DIM. (except for “per 100 fission”).

The following subentries must be corrected. Do not divide DATA values by 100 automatically. The original article must be checked before corrections.
